Senior Software Developer and Manager

I lead, architect, manage, and build web applications and business technical solutions, and see them through to completion.

Self-taught by running a web development company for over 12 years. I have learned and developed skills in project/team management as well as many programming languages, frameworks, and libraries.

I am self-motivated and have proven that I can deliver short and long term needs. I thrive when working on projects that benefit people. I currently work in a co-working space where I have been thriving for years. I can manage remote and in-house developers. I work very well in both remote and in-house environments.
